A Postcard in the Mail "Doremi, look! Another adventure is calling!" Khoon Khoon held up a beautiful postcard. On one side was a picture of two giant towers. On the other, it read: "Discover Malaysia! Where adventures tower above you!" Their magical plane ticket was paper-clipped to it.

Landing in Kuala Lumpur The plane soared over a busy city. "Look! Those are the towers from the postcard!" Doremi shouted, pointing at the Petronas Twin Towers. They sparkled under the sun. "They're so tall!" gasped Khoon Khoon. "They look like they're touching the clouds!"

They're so tall!!

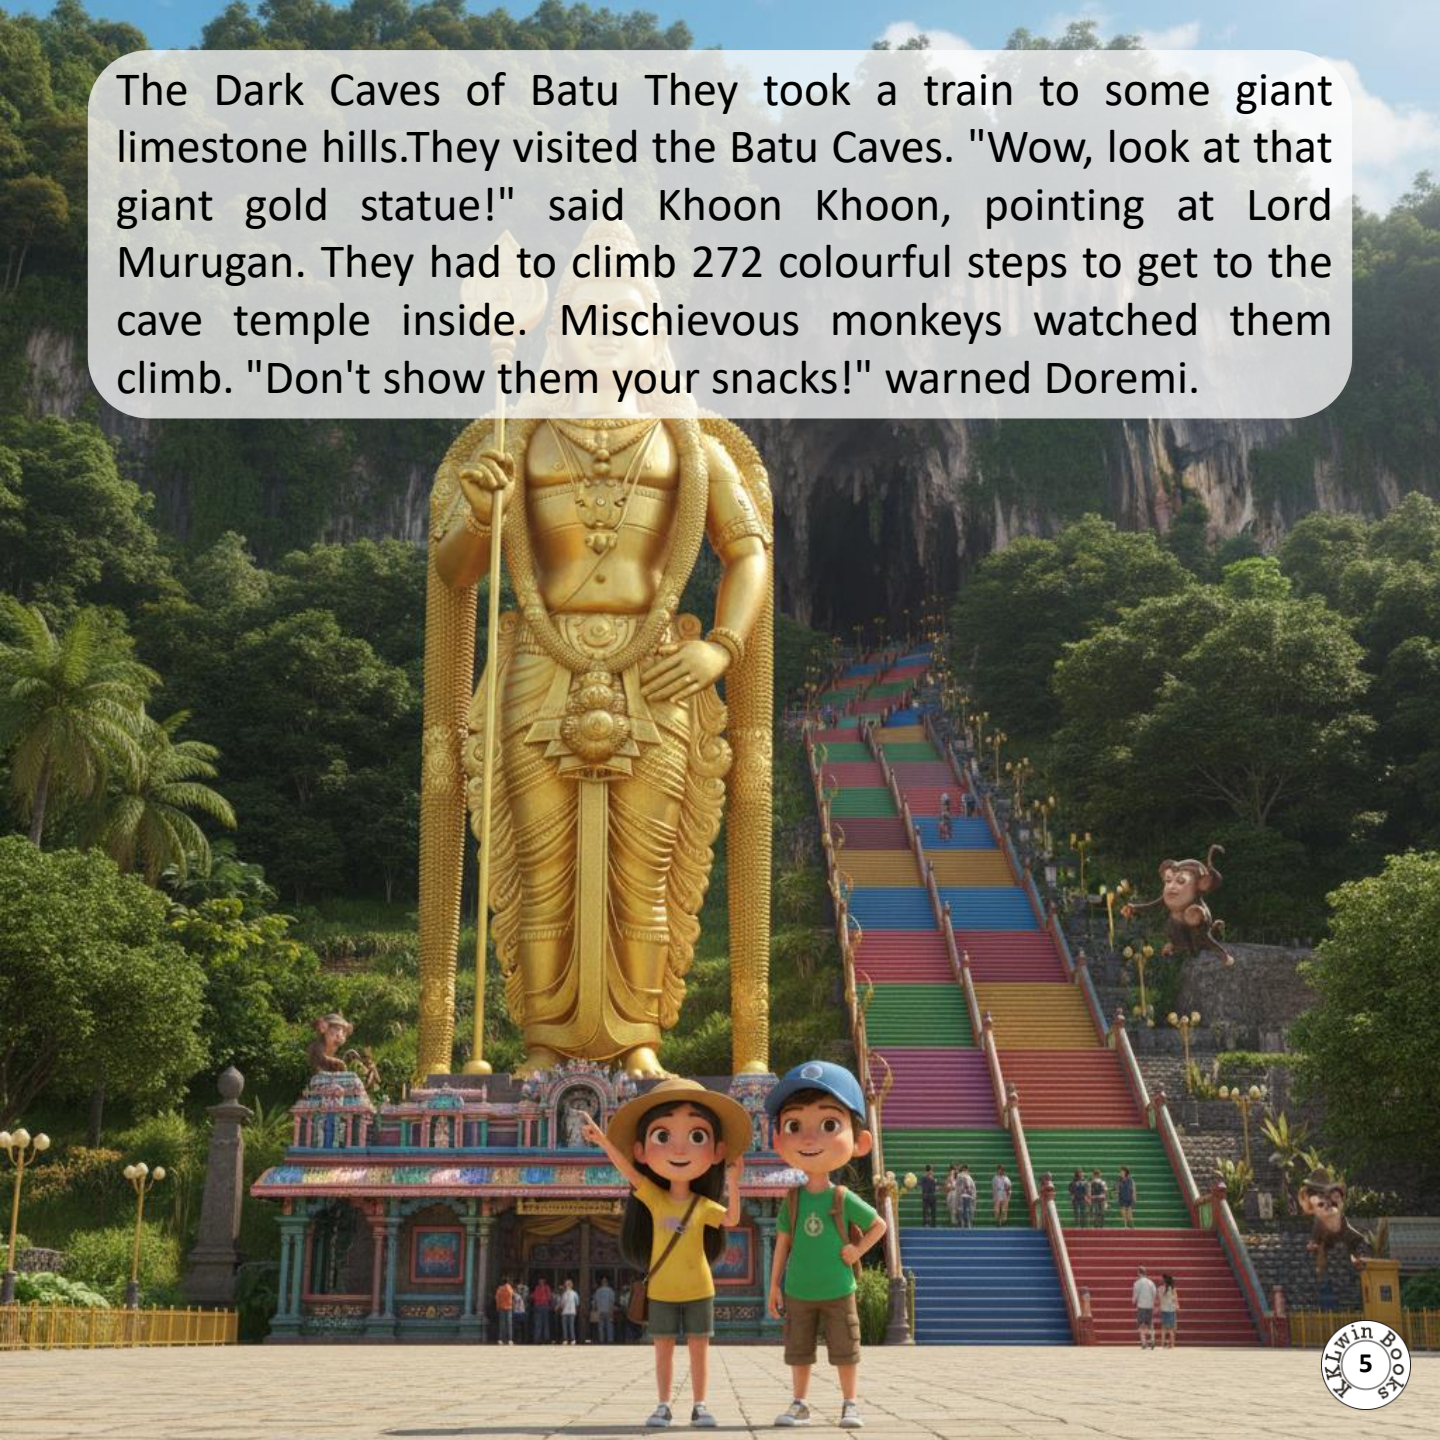

Up in the Sky Bridge They went inside the towers and took an elevator up, up, up! They walked on the sky bridge that connected the two towers on the 41st floor. Looking down, the cars looked like tiny toys. "I feel so high!" said Khoon Khoon, holding Doremi's hand tightly.

A Walk in the KLCC Park At the bottom of the towers, there was a beautiful park with a huge lake. As the sun set, they watched a magnificent water and light show. Fountains danced to music, shooting water high into the air. "It's like the water is dancing for us!" said Doremi with a smile.

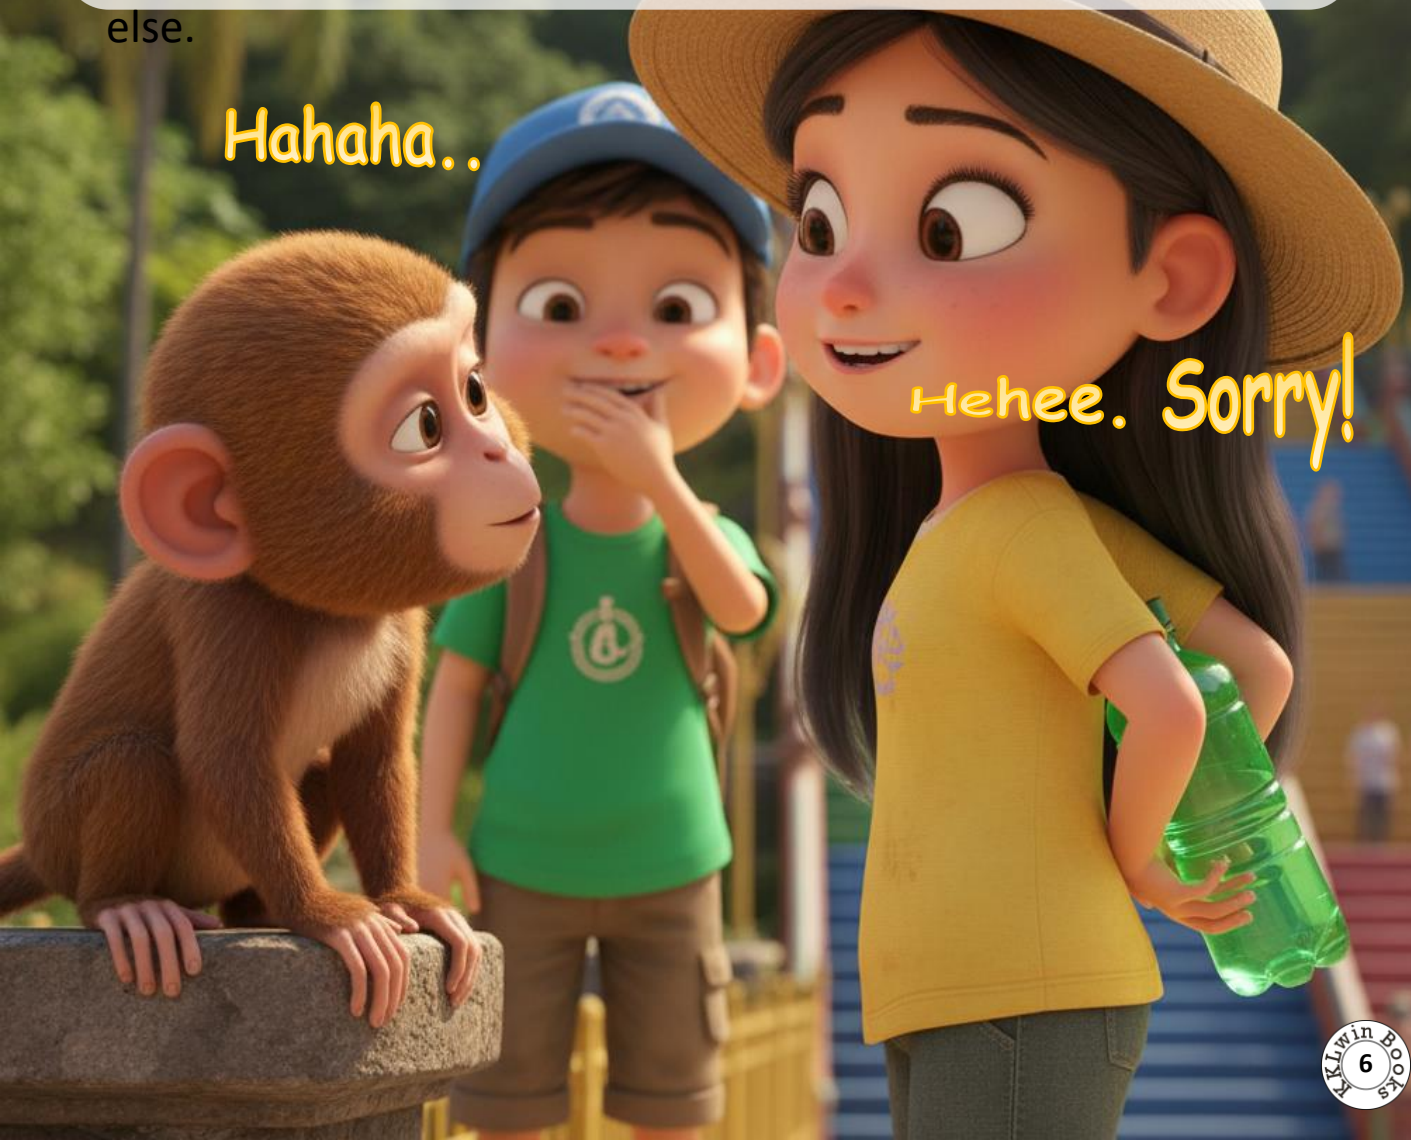

The Dark Caves of Batu They took a train to some giant limestone hills.They visited the Batu Caves. "Wow, look at that giant gold statue!" said Khoon Khoon, pointing at Lord Murugan. They had to climb 272 colourful steps to get to the cave temple inside. Mischievous monkeys watched them climb. "Don't show them your snacks!" warned Doremi.

A Monkey Mischief One brave monkey jumped near them. Squeak! it seemed to say. Khoon Khoon hid her water bottle. "Hehe, sorry, Mr. Monkey. No snacks today!" she said. The monkey scratched its head and ran off to find someone else.

Hahaha..

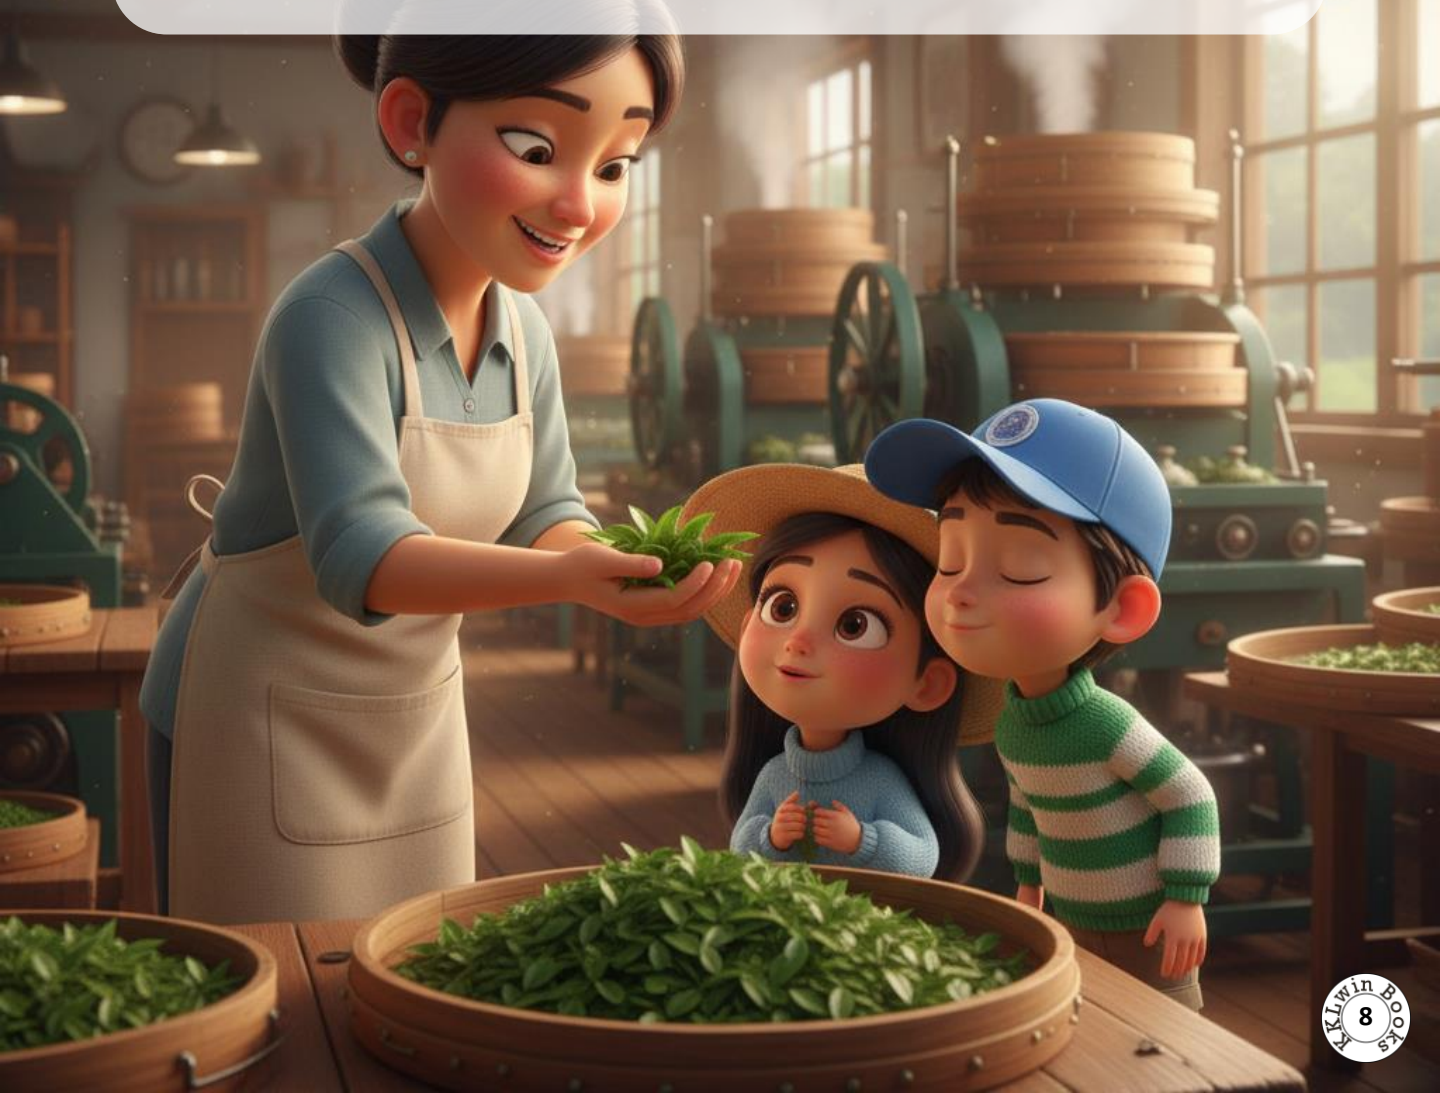

Hehee. Sorry!

The Cool Highlands of Cameron Their next trip was to the Cameron Highlands. The air became cool and fresh. They saw endless green tea plantations on rolling hills. "It looks like a giant, green carpet!" said Doremi. They wore sweaters for the first time on their trip!

A Tea Factory Tour They visited a tea factory. A friendly worker said, "This is how we dry, crush, and pack the tea leaves." They smelled the fresh tea. It was a strong, earthy smell. Later, they drank a cup of warm, sweet tea. "Yum! This is the best tea ever," said Khoon Khoon.

Hahaha...

The Historic City of Melaka They traveled to the old city of Melaka. They saw colourful trishaws decorated with flowers and playing loud music. "Let's ride one!" said Doremi. They hopped on a bright pink trishaw and went for a fun ride around the town, waving at everyone.

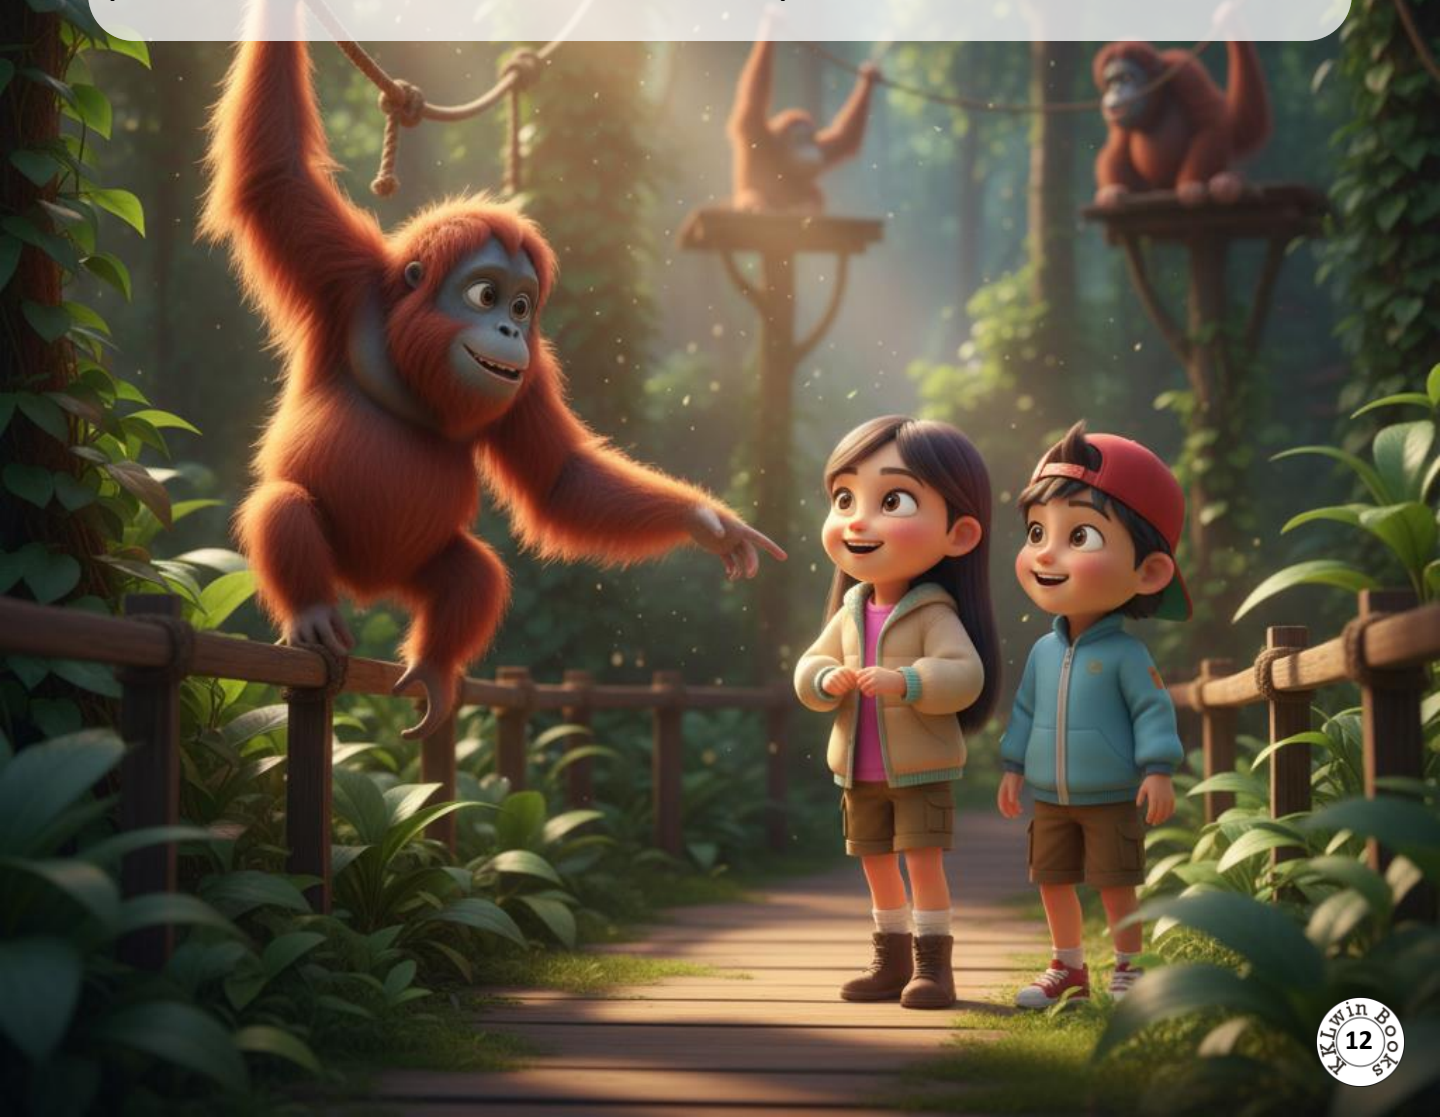

A Stroll Down Jonker Street At night,they walked down Jonker Street Night Market. It was full of people, lights, and delicious smells. They tried sweet, round fruits called lychees and a funny-looking fruit called durian. "It smells strong but tastes creamy!" said Khoon Khoon, surprised.

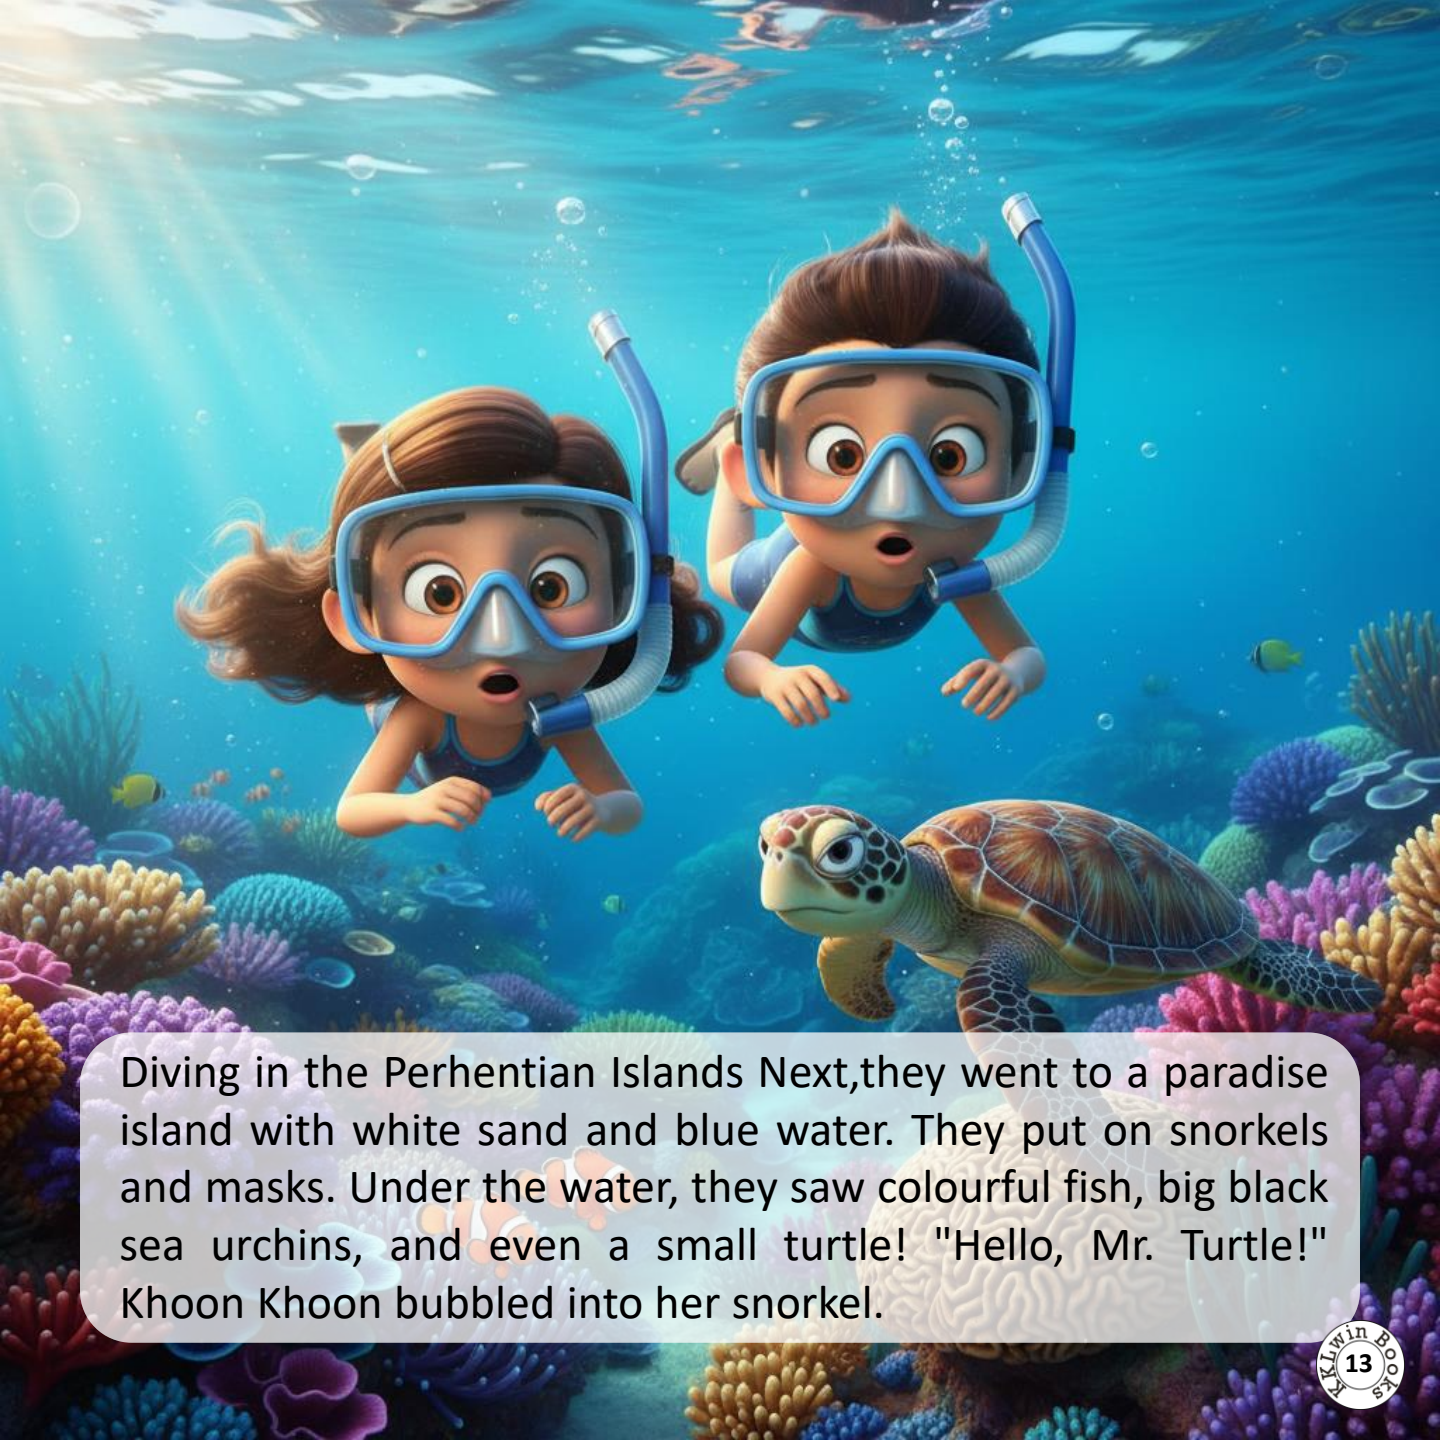

The Wildlife of Borneo (Sepilok) They flew to the island of Borneo! They visited the Sepilok Orangutan Rehabilitation Centre. They saw baby orangutans drinking milk from bottles. "They look so cute and fuzzy!" whispered Khoon Khoon. A young orangutan swung on a rope right above them.

The Man of the Forest A guide told them, "Orangutan means 'person of the forest' in Malay." They watched an adult orangutan move slowly through the trees. "He's so strong and peaceful," said Doremi. "We must protect their forest home."

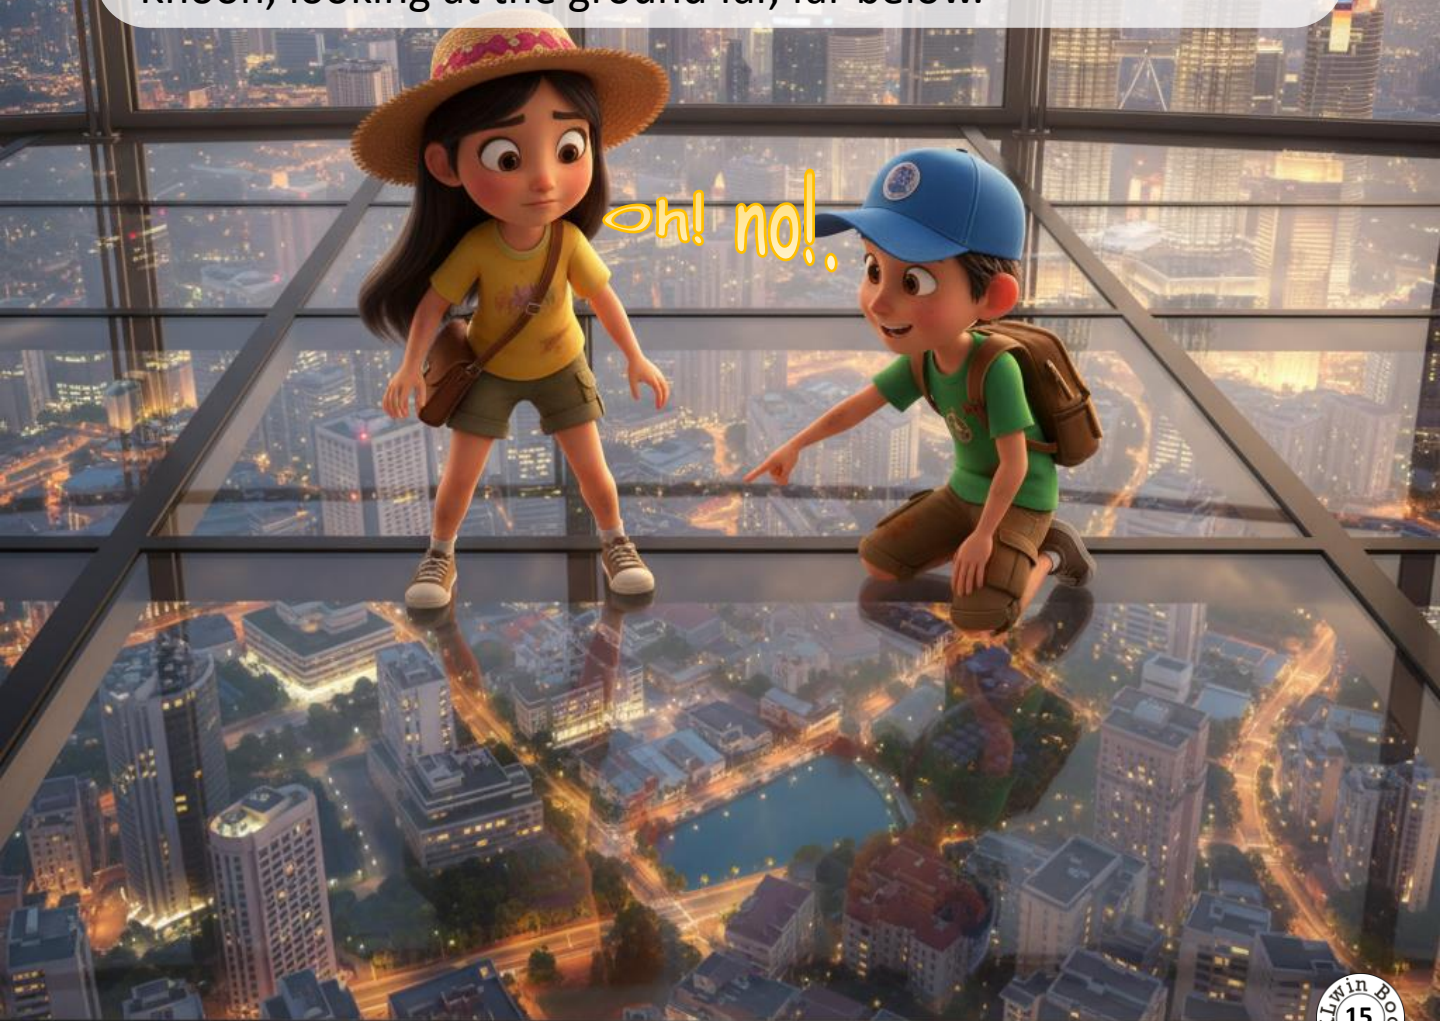

Diving in the Perhentian Islands Next, they went to a paradise island with white sand and blue water. They put on snorkels and masks. Under the water, they saw colourful fish, big black sea urchins, and even a small turtle! "Hello, Mr. Turtle!" Khoon Khoon bubbled into her snorkel.

A Beach Barbecue At night,they had a barbecue dinner on the beach. They ate fresh grilled fish and corn. They listened to the sound of the waves. "The stars are so bright here," said Doremi, looking up at the sky.

The Tall Tower of Menara Back in Kuala Lumpur, they went up another tower – the Menara KL Tower. It was even higher than the sky bridge! They stood on the glass observation deck. "We are walking on air!" shouted Khoon Khoon, looking at the ground far, far below.

A Food Court Feast Malaysia's best adventure was the food! They went to a busy food court. "So many choices!" said Doremi. They pointed at different stalls. "Let's try that!" and "Let's try this!" They sat down with a plate of satay (grilled meat with peanut sauce) and a bowl of laksa (spicy noodle soup).

The Spicy Challenge Khoon Khoon took a sip of the laksa soup. "Wow! It's spicy!" she said, fanning her mouth. Doremi laughed and gave her a drink of fresh coconut water. "Here, this will help cool you down!"

The World's Oldest Rainforest They took a boat into Taman Negara, one of the world's oldest rainforests. The jungle was loud with insect and bird sounds. "It's so green and alive!" whispered Khoon Khoon. They walked on the world's longest canopy walkway, high up in the trees.

A Night Jungle Walk That night, they went on a guided walk with flashlights. They saw sleeping birds, glowing fungi, and a shy tapir! Its nose looked like a little trunk. "It's so quiet and different at night," said Doremi.

The Iconic Hornbill In the morning, they saw a beautiful bird with a huge, curved beak. "That's a rhinoceros hornbill," their guide said. "It's our national bird." It flew over the trees with a loud whooshing sound. "It's so majestic!" said Khoon Khoon.

A Batik Painting Lesson They tried a traditional art called batik.They used a tool with hot wax to draw patterns on cloth, then painted it with bright colours. Khoon Khoon painted a flower. Doremi painted a hornbill. "It's tricky but fun!" said Doremi.

The Friendly People Wherever they went, people were smiling and said, "Selamat datang!" which means "Welcome!". They learned to say "Terima kasih" (Thank you). "Everyone is so kind here," said Khoon Khoon.

A Final Look at the Towers On their last evening, they sat in the park and looked at the Twin Towers lighting up the night sky. "I'll always remember these towers," said Doremi. Khoon Khoon agreed, "They are like two friendly giants watching over the city."

Packing Malaysian Treats At the airport,they bought souvenirs. They packed some Malaysian chocolate and a small wooden hornbill. "We can share the chocolate with our friends," said Khoon Khoon. "And the hornbill will remind us of the rainforest," added Doremi.

The Next Mystery On the plane home, they looked at their adventure scrapbook. Suddenly, a small, folded flag fell out of the book. They unfolded it. It was red and white with a moon and star. "Ooooh, where is this from?" wondered Doremi. "I guess we'll have to find out next time!" smiled Khoon Khoon.

The End
